Boehner Re-Elected as Speaker

Republican leader keeps job as new Congress convenes

Washington

A new Congress opened for business Thursday to confront long-festering national problems in an intensely partisan and crisis-driven era of government. "The American dream is in peril," said House Speaker John Boehner, re-elected to his post despite a mini-revolt in Republican ranks.

Boehner, who won a second term as leader with 220 votes, implored the 113th Congress to tackle the nation's heavy burden of debt at long last. "We have to be willing — truly willing — to make this right."

Nine Republicans voted for someone other than Boehner, one voted present and several abstained. Democratic leader

John Boehner is congratulated Thursday after his re-election as House speaker.

Nancy Pelosi got 192 votes.

In the Senate, Vice President Joe Biden swore in 12 new members elected in November — eight Democrats, three Republicans and one independent, former Maine Gov. Angus King. Also sworn in was Tim Scott of South Carolina, who became the first black Republican in the Senate in more than three decades.

The Senate will have three Hispanics — Democratic Sen. Bob Menendez of New Jersey, Republican Sen. Marco Rubio of Florida and one of the new members,

Meanwhile ...

The new Congress still faces the ideological disputes that plagued the dysfunctional 112th Congress, one of the least productive in more than 60 years. Aside from tackling the debt, also on the two-year agenda is the first significant effort at an overhaul of the tax code in more than a quarter century. Republicans and Democrats alike say they want to chop at a thicket of existing tax breaks and use the resulting revenue to reduce rates. (AP)

Feds reach deal with owner of drilling rig over Gulf disaster

New Orleans

The Justice Department reached a $1.4 billion settlement Thursday with Transocean Ltd., the owner of the drilling rig that sank after an explosion killed 11 workers and spawned the massive 2010 oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico.

The proposed settlement resolves the department's civil and criminal investigations of Transocean's role in the Deepwater Horizon rig disaster. It requires the Switzerland-based company to pay $1 billion in civil penalties and

The deal, which is subject to a federal judge's approval, also calls for Transocean to implement a series of operational safety and emergency response improvements on its rigs.

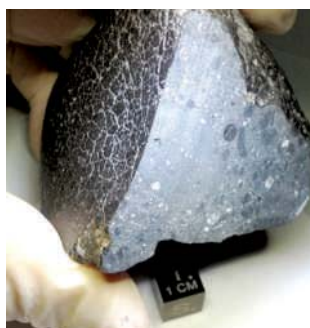

"This resolution of criminal allegations and civil claims against Transocean brings us one significant step closer to justice for the human, environmental and economic devastation wrought by the Deepwater Horizon disaster," Attorney General Eric Holder said in a statement.

Transocean said it believes the settlement is in the best interest of its shareholders and employees and eliminates "much of the uncertainty associated with the accident."

"This is a positive step forward, but it is also a time to reflect on the 11 men who lost their lives aboard the Deepwater Horizon," the company said in a statement. "Their families continue to be in the thoughts and prayers of all of us at Transocean."

Standoff Stirs Over Ailing Chavez

Leader's condition is a mystery as his swearing-in nears

Caracas, Venezuela

President Hugo Chavez is due to be sworn in for a new term in less than a week and his closest allies still aren't saying what they plan to do if the ailing leader is unable to return from a Cuban hospital to take the oath of office.

The government has provided few details but describes Chavez's condition, after complications from a respiratory infection following cancer surgery last month, as "delicate."

His health has raised questions ahead of the Jan. 10 swearing-in, including whether the inauguration could legally be postponed and what will happen if Chavez can't begin his new term.

The main fault lines run

Where Is Hugo Chavez?

Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez hasn't been seen or heard from since his Dec. 11 cancer surgery, and speculation has grown that his illness could be reaching its final stages. A series of ups and downs have been reported in his recovery, though government officials have urged Venezuelans not to heed rumors about Chavez's condition. Chavez was re-elected to a six-year term in October. (AP)

"The only one who has not recently lied regarding this issue is Chavez, who said that he's very sick."

— JULIO BORGES, AN OPPOSITION LAWMAKER IN VENEZUELA, DISCUSSING THE MYSTERY SURROUNDING PRESIDENT HUGO CHAVEZ'S BATTLE WITH CANCER

between Chavez's backers and opponents.

But while the president's allies so far appear united, analysts have speculated that differences might emerge between factions led by Vice President Nicolas Maduro and Diosdado Cabello, the National Assembly president who would be in line to temporarily assume the presidency until a new election.

Cabello has dismissed rumors of discord. "We Chavistas are very clear on what we will do," he tweeted recently.

But as of Thursday, the plans of Chavez's allies remained a mystery.

The Venezuelan Constitution says the presidential oath should be taken Jan. 10 before the National Assembly, and officials have raised the possibility that Chavez might not be well enough to do that.

Chavez said before his surgery that if his illness prevented him from office, Maduro should finish his current term and be his party's candidate in a new election.

Opposition leaders have argued that Chavez seems no longer fit to continue as president and have demanded that a new election be held within 30 days if he isn't in Caracas on inauguration day.

Some of the brewing disagreements could begin to be aired Saturday, when the National Assembly convenes to select legislative leaders. CHRISTOPHER TOOTHAKER AND IAN JAMES (AP)

Move Into 2013

Let's face it. You won't be going to the gym every day in 2013. But you will be going somewhere. And maybe you can improve how you do it. That's why I asked readers to send me their New Year's transportation resolutions.

My favorite came from Colleen Kelly, who's fallen into the habit of cutting through a courtyard to shorten the stroll to her office from Gallery Place. "This year I am going to walk the extra half block to Pennsylvania Avenue — to enjoy the view of the Capitol, the Archives and the National Gallery. [It's] a view I take for granted," she wrote.

Small steps are the easiest to stick with over time, so I predict that Kelly will be seeing a lot of that postcard panorama.

Being able to take in the scenery instead of the traffic may also help the folks who pledged to go for the bus rather than drive this year. To the recent transplant from Dallas who calls taking the plunge a "scary thought," you're gonna be fine.

I'd just suggest heeding the advice of another reader, who shared her standing resolution of never taking the last Metro train of the night. It helps her avoid being hit on by drunk guys and reduces her odds of getting stranded. (After lapsing in previous years, she managed to keep this resolution in 2012.)

As for me, I have a twist planned on the classic New Year's resolution: I'm going to lose the wait. I figure the most irritating thing about riding public transportation in D.C. is excessive downtime, which I spend pace on platforms and shivering at bus stops, constantly craning my neck to see if the right route number is coming around the corner.

I find ways to fill the minutes — counting how long I can stand on one foot, trying to remember all the songs in a given musical, eavesdropping on anyone nearby — but a better option

By Vicky Hallett

As for me, I have a twist planned on the classic New Year's resolution: I'm going to lose the wait.

would be to skip the holdup by remembering to check my phone for train and bus times before heading out.

The NextBus DC app, which allowed users to see arrival info with a tap or two, apparently stopped working a couple of weeks ago when the tech companies behind it couldn't settle a dispute. It may come back to life soon, but until then, NextBus' website and phone system are working perfectly fine.

Metro's resolution to fire up those info screens at station kiosks should also help me decide whether to go through the faregates or come up with an alternative plan that won't involve quizzing myself on show tunes.

With all of my new extra time, I know exactly what to do. Just like Kelly, I'll opt for the scenic route.

Let's Do Shots! We've jumped on the Instagram bandwagon, and we're looking for submissions. Have you ever spotted something while riding Metro (bus included) that you just had to take a picture of? That's what we're looking for. Post your shots and tag us @ExpressDCrider. If we like (heart) your pic, you can email it to dcrider@wpost.com for publication. Witty captions or clever descriptions, including where your pic was taken, will improve your odds. Start snapping.

Missing Man's Body Found in NW

Washington

Michael Poe's father was out walking the streets of Adams Morgan on Wednesday night, handing out yellow fliers with pictures of his red-haired son, trying to find the young man who had disappeared while celebrating New Year's.

A woman living on a nearby street recognized the young man — she had seen him on her roof a couple of hours after midnight Tuesday.

That led to the discovery of Poe's body Wednesday night, 50 feet down a ventilation shaft wedged between a strip of four-story townhouses in the 1800 block of Biltmore Street NW and an apartment building near the trendy entertainment district.

D.C. police confirmed the identity of the 23-year-old from Clarksburg, Md., on Thursday and said that the cause of death is pending an autopsy. Investigators were also trying to determine how Poe made it to the roof. There is no indication of foul play, police said.

Poe

Relatives who had spread out over Adams Morgan, Woodley Park and Rock Creek Park to look for Poe asked to be allowed to grieve in private Thursday as a still-perplexing story unfolded of how a night that began with friends and revelry ended in unusual tragedy.

Montgomery County police said that Poe had last been seen with friends at Shenanigans Irish Pub on 18th Street in Adams Morgan at about 12:30 a.m. Tuesday. Police said the friends split up, and Poe never returned from the District.

Poe's family filed a missing person's report with Montgomery police Tuesday.

D.C. police described in general the events that led to the discovery of the body, which confirmed reports from the neighborhood: A woman heard a commotion early Tuesday and saw a young man walking along the rooftops in the 1800 block of Biltmore St. NW, which are all connected.

According to the Gazette newspaper, Poe graduated from Poolesville High School in 2007. He graduated from Virginia Tech in May.

PETER HERMANN (THE WASHINGTON POST)

A water main break is repaired at the corner of Quebec Pl. and 10th St. NW Thursday.

Water-Pipe Breaks Decrease in Region

Lowest count in six years is attributed to mild winter weather

Washington

Topsy-turvy temperatures in November and a cold snap in late December led to a spike in water main breaks across the Washington region, but a relatively warm year overall helped keep the total number of breaks for 2012 to the lowest count in six years.

By year-end, 2,211 pipes had broken or leaked in the District and Fairfax, Montgomery and Prince George's counties, according to figures provided by local utilities. That amounted to 20 fewer breaks regionwide than in 2011 and nearly 900 fewer breaks than in 2007.

Of course, that didn't lessen the misery for people who were stuck in traffic backups when bursting mains tore open roads or were left temporarily without drinking water.

The new year's frigid temperatures are weakening pipes, including a broken main that snarled the Thursday morning commute on Wisconsin Avenue through Chevy Chase, Md.

"It all amounts to any significant shift in weather," said Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission spokesman I.J. Hudson. "Any change in temperature dramatically increases stress on pipes."

Water utility officials say they welcome fewer breaks overall but that it's too early to declare a trend.

Several theorized that relatively mild autumns and winters in the past couple of years have prevented a repeat of the spike seen in 2010, when nearly 3,000 mains across the region burst or sprung a leak during a particularly cold winter.

"The rehab work is probably helpful at the margins, but the most helpful factor is the weather," said George Hawkins, general manager of DC Water. KATHERINE SHAVER (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Hoyas to open Big East play on the road
against Marquette | 15

The league's top three rushers this season — from left, Adrian Peterson, Alfred Morris and Marshawn Lynch — will be in action this weekend.

Feeling a Rush Again

NFL's 2012 season puts value back into having an elite rushing attack

NFL

The popularization of "running back by committee" and success of late-round and undrafted backs has lessened the perceived value of the position.

But 2012 has rejuvenated the importance of having an elite rushing attack.

The top three rushers in the league — Adrian Peterson, Alfred Morris and Marshawn Lynch — and six of the top-10 backs are in the playoffs.

That's quite a change of pace from recent history. Prior to this season, the league's leading rusher hadn't made the playoffs since 2008. And the top back's

Super Bowl drought is much longer — the Broncos' Terrell Davis was the last to win a title in 1998.

In fact, the worst rushing team in the entire league has gone on to the Super Bowl three of the past four seasons, including last year's champion New York Giants.

Well, that won't happen again this year. The league's worst rushing team, the Arizona Cardinals, didn't come close to making the postseason.

The resurgence of a running game can be attributed to more than just the value of having a reliable back. Across the NFL, teams are utilizing mobile quarterbacks in the run game.

The Redskins-Seahawks game Sunday epitomizes the new-look NFL with rookie quarterbacks Robert Griffin III and Russell Wilson. Griffin set the rookie rushing record for a quarterback with 815 yards, and Wilson added 489 yards on the ground. Add in second-year quarterback Colin Kaepernick, who rushed for 415 yards for the playoff-bound 49ers, and the future of the league has a completely different look than the prototypical drop-back, pocket passer.

It's fun to run again, and offensive coordinators aren't limiting their creativity to the passing game. The zone-read option — a college-football staple once believed to be ineffective against the NFL's quick and super-sized defenses — is utilized by three postseason teams.

Now it's time to see how this new style translates to the postseason, starting with Sunday's showdown at FedEx Field. JEFFREY TOMIK (EXPRESS)

RUNNING INTO PLAYOFFS: Six of the top eight rushing teams in the league made the postseason this year.

Redskins	Minnesota	Seattle	San Francisco	Kansas City	Buffalo	New England	Houston
2,709	2,634	2,579	2,491	2,395	2,217	2,184	2,123

Wild-Card Round Preview

Bengals (10-6)
at Texans (12-4)

Saturday, 4:30 p.m., NBC
Reliant Stadium, Houston

Key to Bengals Victory:

Don't turn the ball over. Last year, quarterback Andy Dalton threw three interceptions in his playoff debut. The Bengals are 5-0 this season when Dalton doesn't throw a pick.

Key to Texans Victory:

Get Foster going. Running back Arian Foster averaged just 46.5 rushing yards in the Texans' four losses this year. He averaged 103.2 yards on the ground in their 12 wins.

Vikings (10-6)
at Packers (11-5)

Saturday, 8 p.m., NBC
Lambeau Field, Green Bay

Key to Vikings Victory:

Slow Rodgers. The Vikings have had one of the worst pass defense the last couple years and are facing the league's top rated passer (Aaron Rodgers). A pass rush would help.

Key to Packers Victory:

Slow Peterson. The Packers lost last week after allowing Adrian Peterson to go for 199 yards on 34 carries. He's topped 150 yards in six of his past eight games.

Colts (11-5)
at Ravens (10-6)

Sunday, 1 p.m., CBS
M&T Bank Stadium, Baltimore

Key to Colts Victory:

Go deep. Behind rookie Andrew Luck, the Colts led the AFC with 65 passes of 20 yards or more. Fellow rookie T.Y. Hilton is one of Luck's favorite deep targets.

Key to Ravens Victory:

Good Flacco. No quarterback had a more up-and-down season than Joe Flacco. He had over a 100 passer rating six times (5-1 record) and below 70 five times (1-4 record).

Seahawks (11-5)
at Redskins (10-6)

Sunday, 4:30 p.m., Fox
Fed Ex Field

Key to Seahawks Victory:

Stop the run. The Seahawks have an average rush defense, ranking 10th (103.1 yards per game), but they've allowed only one 100-yard back in their past seven games.

Key to Redskins Victory:

Defending the pass. While the Redskins rank 30th in the league in pass defense, they have 11 interceptions during their seven-game win streak. J.T.

— REDSKINS' ALFRED MORRIS, WHO HAS EMERGED AS ONE OF THE NFL'S TOP RUNNING BACKS AS A ROOKIE

Out of the Shadows

RGIII grabs most of the attention, but Morris is emerging as a star, too

In a normal football season, one without transcendent performances from rookie quarterbacks and stunning comebacks from players with fused necks and shredded knees, Alfred Morris' story would be legendary.

Instead, the Redskins running back continues to work in relative obscurity, which is perfectly fine for the quiet rookie from Florida Atlantic.

"I really don't care for [the attention], to be honest, but I know it's part of it," he said.

Like it or not, the spotlight surely will find Morris, as he figures to be an integral part of Sunday's playoff contest against the Seahawks. With Robert Griffin III not at full strength after a knee injury, grinding down Seattle's quick, yet small, defense with Morris seems to be an obvious strategy for Washington.

"He's a hammer," Seahawks coach Pete Carroll said.

And Morris proved he's more than up to the task after torching Dallas for 200 yards and three touchdowns in the Redskins' NFC East-clinching victory in Week 17.

"I'm a workhorse," Morris said. "I've told people many times. I was made for this."

In a game that will highlight two of the conference's best runners in Seattle's Marshawn Lynch and Morris, the Redskins feel they have the advantage given the rookie's combination of power and elusiveness.

"[Lynch] is one of the hardest backs I've ever had to tackle," defensive tackle Stephen Bowen said. "But we have one of those running backs in Alfred."

It hasn't taken long for the Redskins' rookie backfield to gain their

Three Things to Watch

1. In the Trenches

With both teams placing a premium on the run game, it will be up to the Redskins' offensive and defensive lines to set the tone to give Alfred Morris room to run and slow Seattle's bruising back Marshawn Lynch.

2. Cornered

With Seattle's Brandon Browner and the Redskins' Cedric Griffin both returning from suspensions, the team that can integrate its cornerback into the secondary seamlessly will have the advantage in defending the pass.

3. Home Sweet Home

Seattle has been a notoriously poor team when traveling east, although the 4:30 p.m. start may offset their normal woes. Can playoff-starved Redskins fans get FedEx Field rocking to throw off the Seahawks? E.S.

teammates' trust, and Morris said some key words from Shanahan helped fuel his stretch run.

"It definitely happened after the bye week. Coach Shanahan told us, 'You guys are not rookies anymore.' That solves that right there," Morris said. "Definitely after that, we're not rookies anymore. We definitely earned the respect and the trust of our teammates. So that's an honor in itself — being a rookie and they consider you not a rookie."

Morris' 1,613 rushing yards set the team's single-season record, but the playoffs are a different animal. Fitting his low-key approach, Morris isn't planning to change a thing now that the stakes are higher.

"I'm not going to think about who's in the playoffs," he said. "I'm not going to think about what's on the line because we've been in a playoff situation since our bye week, and I don't have time to think about that. I'm going to go out there and leave it all on the field and do everything I can to help my team win, and we're going to see what happens." ELLIOT SMITH (FOR EXPRESS)

Georgetown Searching for Golden Answer

Hoyas trying to end three-game road skid against Marquette

College Basketball

The No. 15 Georgetown Hoyas' game on Saturday is their first since before Christmas. It's their Big East opener, their first conference game since Georgetown announced it would be leaving the Big East. It's a road game, at Marquette, where few visitors find success.

The holiday break is over.

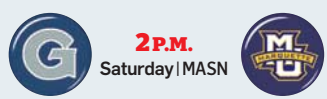

Georgetown (10-1) heads to Marquette having won three of its past four against the Golden Eagles, but the Hoyas have lost three straight in Milwaukee, including last season's 83-69 defeat. Georgetown's last win at Marquette came during the 2007-08 season.

Forward Otto Porter Jr. is averaging 13.2 points and 7.7 rebounds a game.

"We haven't played that well up there," Hoyas coach John Thompson III said. "But it's Big East play. It's time to roll up your sleeves and play." Marquette is riding a 17-game home winning streak that ranks sixth nationally.

Other than getting away for the holiday break, the Hoyas have been in practice mode since downing American University on Dec. 22, their seventh-straight win.

"I don't know, at the end of the day, whether anything you do in practice can 100 percent simulate the environment we're going to walk into when we walk into Marquette on Saturday," Thompson said. "Most of the drills, we tried to put them into competitive situations."

All-American candidate Otto Porter Jr. leads the Hoyas in scoring (13.2), rebounds (7.7), assists (3.2), steals (2.2) and blocks (1.4). The losses at Marquette have been "heartbreaking," said Porter, who in two games as a freshman against Marquette sank 13 of 16 shots and averaged 13.5 points. "I'm just curious to get out there and play."

For the third-straight season, the Hoyas will begin conference play on the road.

"I think we embrace it," junior forward Nate Lubick said. "Being able to start Big East play with a huge win on the road can really set the tone for the season."

Marquette (10-3, 1-0 Big East) opened its Big East play on New Year's Day with an 82-76 overtime win against Connecticut. Junior Cadougan and forward Davante Gardner each scored 18 against the Huskies. Cadougan's backcourt partner Vander Blue (13.3 points per game) leads Marquette in scoring.

"You're looking at a veteran team, and they know how they want to skin the cat," Thompson said, "and they're pretty effective at it." BENJAMIN STANDIG (FOR EXPRESS)

Despite Losses, Beal Honored For December

Wizards

The losses continue to pile up for the Wizards (4-26), threatening to bury guard Bradley Beal under a mountain of misery. But Beal refuses to succumb to his circumstances, continues to work on improving and is starting to see cracks of light through a challenging rookie campaign.

Beal

The first two days of 2013 have wrought some positive recognition for Beal. A day after receiving his personal bobblehead — which he liked while admitting it bared little resemblance to him — Beal was named Eastern Conference rookie of the month Wednesday after averaging 13.4 points, 3.9 rebounds and 3.4 assists in December.

BENGALS (PLUS 4.5) AT TEXANS

BENGALS

I'm retracting my preseason Super Bowl pick.

TEXANS

If some guy named Yates could win it for them last year, Schaub can, too.

TEXANS

Someone told me that momentum heading into the playoffs is overrated. Hope they were right.

BENGALS

Houston loses on purpose to avoid playing New England again.

VIKINGS (PLUS 7.5) AT PACKERS

PACKERS

Beating the Packers twice in two weeks is too tough.

PACKERS

The Vikes have to keep the NFL's most-sacked QB, Rodgers, on his back to have a chance.

PACKERS

Yes, last year's biggest first-round underdog won. But the Vikings don't have Tim Tebow.

PACKERS

Adrian Peterson = AP = AD = All Day ... to watch the rest of the playoffs from home.

COLTS (PLUS 7) AT RAVENS

RAVENS

Ray Lewis isn't losing in his last game in Baltimore.

COLTS

If anyone knows how to beat the Ravens' defense, it's Pagano, their former coordinator.

RAVENS

The Colts played three road games against winning teams. They lost all by an average of 22.

RAVENS

Luck and Chuck had a good run, but Indy is NOT invited to Ray's retirement party.

SEAHAWKS (MINUS 3) AT REDSKINS

REDSKINS

I'm pretty sure the Redskins haven't lost a playoff game at FedEx Field.

REDSKINS

Though I think it'll take a comeback effort against a better team.

REDSKINS

I'd feel better about this pick if I knew Tony Romo was providing advice to Russell Wilson.

REDSKINS

FedEx Field will make Seattle's "12th Man" sound like a monk.

ALABAMA (MINUS 9.5) VS. NOTRE DAME

ALABAMA

I'd have to turn in my Boston College diploma if I went the other way.

NOTRE DAME

This bowl season has showed us that SEC teams aren't exactly stellar this year.

ALABAMA

The last Monday night football game for like eight months. Please let it never end.

ALABAMA

Catholics vs. Cousins. Pop the moonshine. Roll damn Tide.

Stakes Get Higher for Terrapins

College Basketball

For much of the past two months, the Maryland Terrapins (12-1) have relied on internal motivation as they have eased by second-rate competition. Now they'll have something more to play for.

Noon
Saturday | Fox5

The Terps are riding a 12-game winning streak as they begin ACC play Saturday at home vs. Virginia Tech.

"Every time you're out on the court, you're playing as hard as you can," Maryland point guard Pe'Shon Howard said after the Terps' 81-63 win over IUPUI in their final nonconference game.

Maryland's weak schedule has left it unranked. The Terps' lone loss came against then-No. 3 Kentucky, which has since fallen out of the top 25. Had Maryland won that game, coach Mark Turgeon believes, the Terps could be ranked in the top 10. In hindsight, he's almost happy they lost.

"I'm glad we're not undefeated," Turgeon said. "I'm glad we're not seventh or eighth because we're not the seventh or eighth best team, and we didn't deserve to win that night. I think it's kind of kept our attention."

While Maryland hasn't lost in nearly two months, Virginia Tech has lost four of its past six games. The Hokies are coming off a 36-point loss to Colorado State in Las Vegas and a 26-point loss at BYU.

As conference play opens, No. 1 Duke and No. 23 N.C. State are the only ACC schools in the top 25.

Turgeon aims to change that.

"We've got plenty of chances the next few weeks to get ranked," he said. DEREK TURNER (FOR EXPRESS)

Resolve To Rent Smarter

These simple steps can help you save money on your apartment in 2013

Economizing

New Year's resolutions are all about forcing yourself to do the stuff that's been idling on your to-do list: unfriend your oversharing cousins on Facebook, learn to drive stick, write a sitcom spec script, stop hiding from your creditors.

To that list, go ahead and add getting your rental life in order.

There are many simple steps renters can take to save money. So start the new year off on the right foot with these five rental resolutions:

Cut Your Utility Bills

Whether your utilities are included in your rent or you pay Pepco or Dominion Power directly, you're likely to be shelling out more each year as the prices of oil and gas rise.

Resolutions

“A lot of the rent increases we’ve seen in recent years have been attributed to — or blamed on — rising utility costs,” says Joel Cohn, legislative director for the D.C. Office of the Tenant Advocate (Ota.dc.gov).

To cut costs, start by turning your thermostat down a few notches this winter, putting in high-efficiency bulbs such as LEDs or compact fluorescents and unplugging small kitchen appliances and computers when they’re not in use. Even the smallest steps can make a difference.

If you want to make a significant difference in your bills, talk to your landlord. The factors that have the largest impact — a well-insulated home, energy-efficient appliances — are out of renters’ hands.

“Whatever the tenant can do is minimal compared to what the landlord can do,” Cohn says. “That would be a great discussion for tenants to engage management in for mutual benefit.”

Watch Those Hidden Fees

Is the rent you pay noticeably more than what you thought your monthly payment was going to be when you signed your lease?

Lots of renters have to tack extra fees onto their checks — amenities fees, parking fees, pet fees. They add up quickly.

The obvious way to cut is to determine what you can live without: A car? A puppy? A downtown address?

If your cat and Toyota are as necessary to you as breathing, you can still cut down on fees by renting

What’s Rent Control?

If you’re looking for a new place in 2013, you could save by looking for a place that falls under D.C.’s rent-control laws.

In the District, if your building is rent controlled, that means your landlord can raise rent only according to a formula that depends on the inflation rate. Generally, the maximum rent increase allowed is the percentage increase in the Consumer Price Index — which measures inflation — plus 2 percent. With some exceptions, the total increase can’t exceed 10 percent. If you’re disabled or 62 years old or older, your rent can only increase as much as the Consumer Price Index does, with a maximum increase of 5 percent.

In the District, most units fall under rent control — with a slew of exceptions. Some of the most common exceptions include: units built after 1975, units owned by landlords who own four or fewer properties, units that are subsidized by the district or federal government, and units that were vacant when the act took effect in 1985.

You’ll have less luck looking for rent control outside D.C. Virginia and Maryland don’t have rent-control laws, although the city of Takoma Park does. Montgomery County publishes a “voluntary rent guideline” for landlords every year, which they can choose to abide by or not. B.M.

from a private landlord instead of a management company.

“They don’t ask for as much money,” says LeiYana Stevenson, a Realtor at City Chic Real Estate who specializes in helping clients find rentals (Leiyana Stevenson.com). “Your security deposit is one month’s rent, but there’s no amenities fee. You don’t have fees on top of that — no security deposits for your pet that you don’t get back.”

Find Out About Your Future Costs

Here’s a resolution for anyone moving to a new apartment this year: Before you sign the lease, find out not just how much the rent and fees are now but how much they are likely to be in the future.

A 2006 law in D.C. requires landlords to tell prospective renters if the unit is rent-controlled, about any fees the renter has to pay, and about any housing violations issued in the previous year. Crucially, the same law requires landlords of rent-controlled buildings to tell applicants if they’re trying to get their building un-rent-controlled. If the landlord is granted an exemption from the rent-control law, those tenants will be in for a huge rent increase.

If you are considering living in a building that is not under rent control, ask how much the rent typically increases each year. Many large management companies have a standard increase across all units.

The 2006 D.C. law requires landlords to tell applicants about other fees, including the nonrefundable application fee, the amount of the initial security deposit and the interest rate the security deposit will earn.

Which brings us to ...

Ask Where Your Security Deposit Is

Many renters are so happy to get even part of their security deposit back when they move out that they don’t realize it’s been accruing interest in the bank — and they’re entitled to it.

“The tenant historically hasn’t known what the interest is,” Cohn says. “They get some nominal amount, and they find out later it was earning much more interest.”

D.C.’s 2006 rent-control disclosure law sought to correct that by requiring landlords to tell you up front how much interest your security deposit will accrue.

“A lot of the rent increases we’ve seen in recent years have been attributed to — or blamed on — rising utility costs.”

— JOEL COHN, LEGISLATIVE DIRECTOR FOR D.C.’S OFFICE OF THE TENANT ADVOCATE, WHO SAYS RENTERS CAN SAVE MONEY ON UTILITIES

If you never found out, this is the year to ask. You could be in for a little extra cash down the road.

Buy Renters Insurance

This one may seem counterintuitive — after all, how is buying something a way to save money?

Renters insurance costs a few dollars in the short term — typically less than $200 a year. But if you end up needing it, it can save you thousands.

As Realtor Stevenson says: “You never know.”

Some types of damage aren’t covered by the owner. For example, some leases stipulate that the owner of the unit is not responsible for damage from outside the unit.

“If someone left their bath water running upstairs and it came down, you want to have renters insurance,” Stevenson says.

Why Apartments Have Inefficient Appliances

Rental landlords have fewer incentives to buy Energy Star appliances

Utilities

Economists puzzle over why more people don’t invest in energy-efficiency measures that save money over the long run. One explanation is that the incentives at work can sometimes be skewed.

Lucas Davis and David Levine of UC Berkeley explain that people who rent apartments tend to have fewer energy-efficient appliances than those who own their homes.

Why? Think about the incentives at work. A homeowner can spend a bit more money upfront to purchase an efficient refrigerator and enjoy slightly lower electricity bills over time. Many homeowners make that trade.

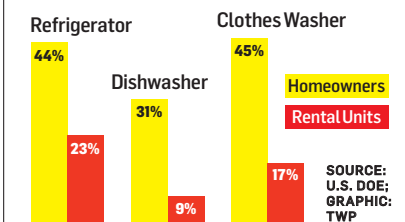

Things are different in a rental unit. The landlord is usually the one purchasing the appliance. But the tenant is often paying the electricity bills. So landlords don’t have nearly as much incentive to buy, say, an Energy Star fridge or dishwasher.

True, the landlord could buy the costlier appliances and charge higher rent. But as Levine notes, potential renters are less likely to pay higher rents for energy efficiency because they don’t have solid information that it will translate into lower bills.

As a result, a 2010 paper by Davis found that rented apartments have about half as many Energy Star appliances as homes do. That’s true even if you control for income, demographics, energy prices and weather.

The Numbers

Notably, when the landlord is paying utility bills, the appliances tend to be much more efficient.

COOKING CHANNEL

Aarti Sequeira

COOKING CHANNEL HOST, KIMCHI FAN

The rock-star popularity of such globe-trotting, plate-hopping TV personalities as Andrew Zimmern and Tony Bourdain shows how hungry audiences are for exotic eats. But bringing home the bacon dumpplings from a trip to Prague would make your luggage reek. That's where Aarti Sequeira comes in. The new show "Taste in Translation" (9 p.m. Fridays on the Cooking Channel) has the Indian-American chef (and winner of Season 6 of "The Next Food Network Star") showing us how to cook a variety of worldly dishes — no passport required.

Where are some of the places we'll see you go?

We'll actually go around the world. The purpose of the show is to demonstrate our similarities and differences in food. Food is something that unites us, for instance at celebrations, whether it's American cake or Honduran arroz con pollo.

What's the most unusual thing you show audiences how to make on the show?

Janson's Temptation, this Swedish dish, comes to mind. It's potatoes, cream, onions and anchovies. Some people might be put off by the anchovies, but they're pickled, so they dissolve into this sweet, nutty awesomeness. You want to wrap yourself in it!

Are ingredients from foreign cultures tough to find?

It's becoming easier and easier to find ingredients. Grocery stores have more things, and you can always order your yuzu and Sriracha online.

Is there an ingredient you wish people would try more often?

Kimchi! It's one of these ancient foods, and it's good for digestion. It goes with so much.

What'll be the food trend in 2013?

Korean is one, and regional Mexican food. At-home fermentation, from brewing your own beer to making sauerkraut, will be a trend. People are pickling carrots in their sleep, so it has to be what's next!

"At-home fermentation, from brewing your own beer to making sauerkraut, will be a trend."

Have Americans become more adventurous eaters?

Yes. Palates are opening up, and people are willing to take little culinary adventures. That's why I wanted to do a show like this — we frame each episode with a common theme, like snack food, and show people both how Americans do it and, say, the Senegalese do it.

If you were planning a culinary dream trip, where would you go?

I'm split. I'd love to go to Denmark and experience the imaginative food there, both in terms of flavors and how they're presenting it. And I'd love to go back to Goa in India. I was recently there, and people are really experimenting with food, fusing Indian with Western.

If I eat a dish on vacation and want to make it at home, how do I get the recipe?

Try to ask for it, obviously. And then, it's a combination between scouring the Internet and experimenting. JENNIFER BARGER (EXPRESS)

Event Horizon | Brushing Up on Wine and Art

Inspired Pairing, a local DIY art- and wine-tasting company, demonstrates how to paint like Henri Matisse and sip viognier vintages like a Frenchman. 2-4 p.m. Saturday; $85. ## Grab Bag

1 Eats Meet West

WEST ELM recently started outfitting hipsters' kitchens with its new Market line. Now aspiring Top Chefs can fill the store's enamel stock pots or birch-topped honey pots with a variety of gourmet, locavore food products. We're talking — and scarfing down — Just Cook's meat rubs (shown, $8) in such flavors as Close to Curry and Herbed Coffee; Domata's gluten-free pizza-crust mix ($7); and D.C.'s own Gordy's Pickles. The buffet is served online (Westelm.com) and in the Georgetown (3333 M St. NW; 202-333-2928) and Tysons Corner Center (1961 Chain Bridge Road, McLean, Va.; 571-633-0227) locations.

3 Pulp Faction

tends to be sturdy, but assembling a LACK shelf won't make you feel like the second coming of Thomas Chippendale. Though Louis Schultz's cardboard table ($70, Uncommongoods.com) also comes packed flat, putting it together is a cinch, and its graceful silhouette smacks of uptown elegance, not downtown Dumpster. Just don't use it as a perch for votive candles or a heavy lamp, either of which could result in disaster.

5 Tackle Toes

WHETHER YOU root for the Florida 'Canes or Notre Dame, you can show college-football pride with D.C.-based Lilly U's new striped ballet flats ($58, Lillybee.com/lilly-u). On nongame days, the vaguely nautical beauties pair just as well with jeans or casual dresses as they do with oversize team jerseys. Still, we hope they come out with a burgundy and gold pair — call it a (Low) Heel for the Redskins? — soon.

Hair Tactics

CONSIDER THE GOODY Quikstyle

Brush ($11.30, Target.com and drugstores) an energy-saving version of round-brushing your hair while you blow it dry. This Frankenstein of a tress gadget intersperses familiar plastic bristles with short, fluffy towel tentacles that are meant to absorb the water from your mane as you brush it. It does indeed dry your tresses quicker; plus it leaves your locks pleasingly smooth and shiny, so you look less like a hobo while your hair dries than you normally do.

And by you, we mean us.

Redecorating Resolutions?

STEP ONE: Order Holly Becker's (of Decor8blog fame) new interior-design book, "Decorate Workshop" ($27.50, Chronicle). Step Two: Pore over sharp images, including mantels festooned with art and vintage pots; novel paint pairings (cobalt and charcoal); and inspiring kids' rooms. Step Three: Implement your own House Beautiful via Becker's easy-to-follow eight-step process that assures your vision, whether it's funky and folkloric or mid-century mod.

Dear Manolo

ANSWERS FROM THE SHOE BLOGGER

What are the hot shoe trends for 2013? —KELLY

Manolo says, from what the Manolo has seen in the spring shoe collections of the major designers, the hottest trends will be the 6-plus-inch heels in the superhot colors (including puce and verdigris) made from the skins of exotic endangered animals (such as the lesser-tree sloth and the greater pangolin), shoes that will sell in the $4,700-and-up range.

The Manolo's sources in the with-it crowd say that mix-and-match will be the rage, as superskinny ladies of mode seek to wear different shoes on the different feet, perhaps the Jimmy Choo stiletto on the left foot, and the Louboutin embroidered satin flat on the right, or vice versa.

Hobbling will briefly replace strutting on the catwalks of Paris and Bucharest, and pedestrian accidents will skyrocket in Lower Manhattan.

In March, the widespread front of Swarovski crystal spikes will move into the tristate area, causing panic-buying among matronly women on the Upper East Side, who will pile into the Saks 10022 Shoe department to load up on 9-inch Giuseppe Zanotti wedges in the metallic known as samovar. By early April, crystal spikes on mismatched shoes will be out, out, OUT! Ugh, how can you wear that, it is so last minute.

Manolo says, chasing fashion trends is out. Developing your own personal style that is timelessly you is the new black! Here is the Giorgio Armani leather-patent wing tip ($595, Saksfifthave.com), just because.

NEW
OLD
HOOD

People have been shopping in Georgetown since colonial citizens bought tobacco and powdered wigs here in the 18th century. But these days, the District's oldest hood (circa 1751) is looking downright modern with an influx of new national, international and local retailers setting up shop on its main drags, Wisconsin Avenue and M Street. "It's been an explosion, with 25 to 30 stores opening since 2010," says Nancy Miyahira, marketing director for the Georgetown Business Improvement District. "It's a charming neighborhood as a backdrop." Here's the scoop on what's new and what to watch for.

JENNIFER BARGER, HOLLEY SIMMONS AND CHELSEA HUANG (EXPRESS)

Bonobos will sell custom-fit jeans and colorful pants out of its new "guideshop."

The Scoop: Since it takes its name from a playful type of chimpanzee, it's not shocking that this Web power specializes in hipster spins on classic men's wear: hot pink chinos ($88), Rat Pack-ish plaid ties and well-priced suits (starting at $437). This soon-to-open "guideshop" doesn't sell off the rack, though: Instead, you set up a 45-minute appointment, then come in to be fitted. After you pay, goods are shipped to you free in one to two business days.

Upping the Authenticity: Expect Brooklyn-esque decor including vintage suitcases, typewriters and retro photos. You'll be tempted to Instagram yourself while you're here.

Size Wise: Hard-to-fit dudes will love this place: Bonobos can make pants in waist sizes from 28 to 40 and lengths from 30 to 36.

Details: Opens this month; 3320 Cady's Alley; 877-294-7737, Bonobos.com

ON THE COVER

The Scoop: Think of this Spanish his-and-hers chain as Zara's older, more sophisticated sib: The store is owned by the same mega company. On two posh-as-a-palazzo levels (creamy marble floors, library-ish wood shelves), nab work-to-weekend pieces such as leather skirts ($265) and natty men's blazers ($200 and up), plus sleek shoes and bags.

MASSIMO DUTTI

Don't miss: The life-size horse statue at the front of the store. (We're dubbing him Massimo.)

Best bets: Knits for both donnas and dons; though many come at Zara price points ($100 for a sequined angora number), they're higher in quality and often made in Europe, not China.

Details: 1220 Wisconsin Ave. NW; 202-944-8780

SCOTCH
& SODA

The Scoop: Scotch & Soda resembles a Dutch J. Crew. The retailer combines European tailoring with luxe twists, meaning a white tweed biker jacket with leather sleeves for her ($398) and skinny jeans in loads of colors. This outpost sells only womenswear until mid-January, when men's styles in a varsity-grows-up mood come in. The digs are also cool-kid: exposed brick walls, window panes turned into clothing racks and lots of exposed bronze hardware.

Best Bets: Comfy knits and pullovers, classic shirt dresses and distinctive jackets and blazers.

Fun Fact: This is just the third branch of the retailer in the U.S.

Details: 3029 M St. NW; 202-338-4090, Scotch-soda.com

Easy, breezy accessories including are-we-in-Amsterdam? scarves come from Holland's Scotch & Soda.

MULEH POP-UP SHOP

The Scoop: What began as an Indonesian decor store in Bethesda in 1999 has grown into a pair of haute womenswear and mod Asian furniture outposts in Logan Circle and New York City. Well, more like two and a half shops, considering this pop-up is scheduled to be open until April. Expect quality over quantity at the G-town space, since principal Chris Reiter stocks the tight squeeze with a curated stash: fur-lined Mulberry leather gloves ($300), Vivienne Westwood lamé dresses ($595), hanging lamps by Ango ($865).

Best Bets: Glitzy, party-ready frocks, glamorous accoutrement

Fun Fact: The shop is a mere 700 square feet, but Reiter makes the most of the space. All of the fixtures that display garments are available for purchase, and anything you don't see on the floor can be ordered from either one of the other shops.

Details: 3319 Cady's Alley NW; 202-333-0396, Muleh.com

"I call the space Petite Muleh because it's just a slice of what the other locations have to offer."

— PRINCIPAL
CHRIS REITER

The Scoop: Gant's been making preppy shirts and sweaters for guys named Skip and Biff since 1947.

But the all-Americana brand has recently branched out with edgy-yet-classic designs from Michael Bastian (blue camo cargo pants, slim-cut tweedy jackets) and a smattering of womenswear. The new M Street locale sets off all that collegiate style in a space with sweet-smelling (really!) wood floors and lots of hunky salesclerks.

Know That: All that tailoring and history doesn't come cheap: Michael Bastian for Gant men's jackets run more than $800; more basic Rugger jeans cost around $170 a pair.

Best For: Pieces that you'll wear for so long that the CPW (cost per wear) is justified; unexpectedly forward-feeling women's styles

Details: 3239 M St. NW; 202-625-1949; Gant.com

Gant's spring styles come in time-tested cuts and updated hues.

GANT

COMING THIS YEAR

Alex and Ani: Charm-decked bracelets, earrings and other costume bling will star at this jewelry trove. (3068 M St. NW)

Billy Reid: Heritage clothing for him and her (tweed blazers, oxford shirts) gets refined and really stylish thanks to this Alabama style maven. (3211 M St. NW)

Frye: Boots (above) and bags stomp into a historic redbrick structure. (1064-1066 Wisconsin Ave. NW)

The Reelist*The Kids Are Meh

If you start a band in a movie, the following things will happen: You'll have to replace someone early on. You'll practice cover songs in someone's parents' basement or garage. Then you'll play parties or win a talent contest. Cut to hearing your song on the radio for the first time, cut to tour, cut to drugs, cut to Yoko stand-in, cut to reunion tour.

The fictional band in "Not Fade Away," opening Friday, doesn't follow the typical cinematic trajectory. There are cover songs and basements and a lot of talk about making it big, but the group's members (led by John Magaro's Douglas) spend most of their time spinning their wheels in their New Jersey suburb.

The band seems to think that since they're pretty good and they really like the Rolling Stones, a Fairy Godagent will show up and shower them with riches. When Douglas, the most motivated of the group (and that's not saying much), actually takes steps to move his career forward, he doesn't take big steps, so he doesn't even fail spectacularly when his attempts don't work out.

Everything about the movie is small: Though the band members want fame and fortune, they don't seem to want it that badly. "Not Fade Away" is, essentially, a study about what happens when you don't want anything in particular, and you're not willing to do much to get it.

Can't Spoil the View

Even if you know what happens on 'Downton Abbey' in season 3, it's still worth watching

Television

SUN
9:00

There are many delicious reasons to watch season 3 of "Downton Abbey," returning to PBS Sunday, and one exasperating reason to skip it: The cover's been blown on major plot twists.

In what may be outsized revenge for the American Revolution, the Brits are sharing "Downton Abbey" with us, but only after first airing each season in England.

As such, American "Downton Abbey" addicts are forced to shun news reports and blogs about what happens to character A, B or C.

"It is unfair that England gets to see 'Downton Abbey' before us because we beat them in a war" was the saucy comment tweeted by "Lost" producer Damon Lindelof.

The Brits are sharing "Downton Abbey" with us, but only after first airing each season in England.

It's certainly a development galling enough to draw insults. But as Downton's courtly master, Lord Grantham (Hugh Bonneville), once rebuked a blunt-spoken visitor: Steady on, sir, the ladies have suffered quite enough of a shock!

Rebecca Eaton, executive producer of PBS' "Masterpiece" showcase that's home to "Downton," contends it's premature to assess the

Inside the 'Abbey'

The Walls Talk

Two TV specials take you inside the real "Downton Abbey," Highclere Castle, located in the English countryside. The 1,300-year-old estate is the subject of PBS' "Secrets of Highclere Castle" (Sun., 8 p.m.); while "Castles on Camera: Royal Residences on TV" (Fri., 9 p.m., HGTV) takes viewers inside Highclere as well as Althorp, home of the Spencer family and where the late Princess Diana is buried. (UNIVERSAL UCLICK/TRIBUNE MEDIA) impact here of the U.K. airing that wrapped Christmas Day. "It will be difficult to say until it airs in this country," Eaton says.

The bar is high since last year, when "Downton Abbey" became the most-watched series ever for "Masterpiece" with more than 17 million viewers across seven episodes. With its swooning, buzz-worthy romances, the drama also gave PBS a new veneer of cool.

But what's to be done if the season endgame is stuck in your brain? As a famous Brit said in more dire circumstances, never surrender! Go along for the ride that the beautifully produced soap opera-cum-fairy tale offers, admiring how the devilish-

The To-Do About Matthew

If you haven't watched the season 3 Christmas special, DON'T READ ON. Dan Stevens, left, who plays Lady Mary's groom-to-be Matthew, will not return for "Downton Abbey's" fourth season. He chose not to renew his contract after the third season aired in the U.K. (EXPRESS)

Highlights From The Third Season

► Newcomer Shirley MacLaine as Cora's American mother, talking smack with British in-law Violet (Maggie Smith), each wittily knocking the other's nation and values.

► Fashion and its evolution, as Downton's upstairs ladies move from lovely but fussy wardrobes to sassier, clean-lined garb and shorter hair, reflections of liberating changes that include the promise of universal suffrage for all British women.

► A stately house, but fast-paced action. Creator Julian Fellowes says he took a cue from the American mash-up approach to storytelling perfected in shows like "ER" and "The West Wing," with stories big and small, sad and funny "all sort of plotted up together." (AP) ly clever Julian Fellowes, its creator, foreshadows the events to come.

As Downton's residents adjust to post-World War I England, "there are chills and spills involved in that for all the characters, some laughs and some tears," Fellowes says.

Knowing the destination doesn't mean you can't appreciate the scenery. LYNN ELBER (AP)

Aspic Matters: We can analyze the recipe for success of "Downton Abbey" until our cups of tea go cold. But one element that can't be overlooked, especially for those of a culinary bent, is the food. Go to Washingtonpost.com/lifestyle/food for a look at the work done by and for "Downton Abbey's" kitchen and a range of period recipes (such as broiled oysters with peach and paprika, and a basic roast chicken) for all your viewing-party needs.

entertainment lookout*Now Playing

BARBARA (Unrated, 105 minutes) Christian Petzold's "Barbara" revisits the quiet, everyday tragedies of the Iron Curtain era, when paranoia ran deep and for very good reasons. With methodical, uninflected storytelling, Petzold creates an exceptionally vivid portrait of a time that, in the intervening decades, seems both recent and ancient. A.H.

DJANGO UNCHAINED (R, 165 minutes) The Jamie Foxx-led movie breathes refreshing, occasionally demented, life into the Civil War era, albeit in the pulpy, stylized cinematic language of director Quentin Tarantino. Where 2009's "Inglourious Basterds" was little more than a larkly speculative burlesque, "Django Unchained" possesses an unmistakable subversive power, its playfully insurrectionist spirit perhaps the modern-day pop-culture equivalent of far more high-stakes rebellions of yore. There's a point in "Django Unchained" when its sheer absurdity, luridness and violence pose an inescapable challenge to the audience: Sure, this is an outrageous distortion, the movie itself seems to say, but is it any more outrageous than "Gone With the Wind"? A.H.

THE GUILT TRIP (PG-13, 96 minutes) Anne Fletcher's lifeless comedy about an overbearing mother and her exasperated son is a series of clunky scenes in which Seth Rogen tries desperately to play off Barbra Streisand. A.H.

THE HOBBIT: AN UNEXPECTED JOURNEY (PG-13, 170 minutes) The first of director Peter Jackson's trilogy has finally arrived, with a hairy-footed thud. The film may well please the franchise's most devoted fans of J.R.R. Tolkien's imaginative landscape of dwarfs, elves, goblins, trolls and the appealingly winsome title character. But purely on its own terms, "An Unexpected Journey" can't be seen as anything but a disappointment. A.H.

THE IMPOSSIBLE (PG-13, 114 minutes) The 2004 tsunami in the Indian Ocean, which opens the fact-based drama "The Impossible," is rendered with nightmarish realism by Spanish director J.A. Bayona. The wall of water looks harrowingly real as it slams into the Thai resort where tourists Henry and Maria (Ewan McGregor and Naomi Watts) are spending the holidays with their sons. But what is rendered even more convincingly is the anguish of separation experienced by Maria, who's swept away from the others with her eldest son. The rest of the film tracks the efforts of the family to reunite. M.O.

JACK REACHER (PG-13, 131 minutes)

Presumably taking a long, self-indulgent glance at his What Would Clint Do? bracelet, Tom Cruise takes on the iconic role of surly vigilante in "Jack Reacher," resulting in a mismatch of wincingly epic proportions. A.H.

LES MISERABLES (PG-13, 160 minutes) There are moments early on in "Les Miserables" when viewers may feel like they're about to witness a bona fide disasterpiece, one of those spectacular miscalculations that can be almost as entertaining as a superbly executed work of audacious ambition and scope. This adaptation of the megahit Broadway musical fits neither description. It lives in that OK-not-great, this-worked-that-didn't in-between. "Les Miserables" is less a fully realized film than a series of set pieces, showstoppers, diva moments and production numbers. A.H.

LINCOLN (PG-13, 149 minutes) A peculiar, powerful alchemy takes hold in "Lincoln," Steven Spielberg's masterful portrait of the 16th U.S. president. Through that strange mix of realism, artifice, intimacy and scope that cinema uniquely possesses, viewers find themselves transported to 19th-century Washington, where Abraham Lincoln — played by Daniel Day-Lewis — has just been re-elected to a second term. Spielberg infuses “Lincoln” with energy, acumen, surprising humor and the unabashed affection for his subject. A.H. PARENTAL GUIDANCE (PG, 105 minutes) This movie is perfect for families. Assuming, of course, that: a) your family has traveled in time from 1995, when most of the jokes in the movie were first written, and b) you have no taste whatsoever. When yuppie parents go out of town, they decide to leave their brood of three with the grandparents (Billy Crystal and Bette Midler). “Parental Guidance” is not just dull; it’s aggressively dull, as if the people who made it actually want to put you to sleep and then steal your wallet. M.O. PROMISED LAND (R, 106 minutes) This wispy, over-earnest movie stars Matt Damon as Steve Butler, a good corporate road warrior for a $9 billion energy company whose speciality is persuading poor farmers to lease their lucrative land for a relative pittance. After buying some flannel shirts and work gloves, Steve pitches the small dairy farming town of McKinley, Pa. There are a few naysayers, chiefly a local teacher and, later, an interloping environmentalist in the person of Dustin Noble (John Krasinski). “Promised Land” isn’t a particularly arresting piece of filmmaking, but it benefits from one refreshing twist in a corporate villain who isn’t really a villain, a man motivated not by avarice and greed, but by compassion. A.H. RISE OF THE GUARDIANS (PG, 97 minutes) The arrival of the bogeyman, known as Pitch Black (Jude Law), sets the story in motion. Pitch is the bringer of nightmares. His resurgence mobilizes the Guardians — Santa Claus, the Easter Bunny, the Tooth Fairy and the Sandman — who must accept the help of the untested and somewhat irresponsible young fifth spirit, Jack Frost. The movie may not have been on your Christmas list, but with its fresh take on the power of myths, it is one present you won’t want to return. M.O. RUST AND BONE (R, 120 minutes) Based on short stories by Craig Davidson, this is one of those movies that never gives the audience a clear sense of where it’s going. In any other hands, that would mean a disorienting, even alienating, experience. But steered by filmmaker Jacques Audiard, “Rust and Bone” turns out to be the best kind of cinematic ride: surprising, spectacular and shot through with tough, unsentimental compassion. A.H. SILVER LININGS PLAYBOOK (R, 117 minutes) As the movie opens, Pat Solitano (Bradley Cooper) is being discharged from a psychiatric facility. He meets Tiffany (Jennifer Lawrence), a sharp-tongued young widow with an acute nonsense-detector and a knack for brutal honesty equaled only by Pat’s own impulsive, socially disastrous candor. A.H. SKYFALL (PG-13, 145 minutes) To succeed, a James Bond movie must traffic in equal parts sophistication and pure preposterousness, a winking willingness not to take itself so seriously, but with writing, acting and production values of the highest order. All of those elements are on hand in “Skyfall,” which brings back Daniel Craig as 007. A.H. THIS IS 40 (R, 134 minutes) As unstructured as a sweatsuit, “This Is 40” nevertheless is a comfortable fit for its stars, Paul Rudd and Leslie Mann, who bring a laid-back chemistry and prickly energy to writer-director Judd Apatow’s amiably angsty comedy about a married couple (Pete and Debbie from “Knocked Up”) facing midlife. Overlong and unnecessarily sex-obsessed, “This Is 40” feels haphazard and unfinished, despite a few moments of laugh-out-loud humor. M.O.

1 Pretty Good Deal

Even if you're not a blues aficionado, you probably saw rap/blues pioneer Chris Thomas King in "O Brother, Where Art Thou?" King played a guitarist who claimed to have sold his soul to the devil in exchange for his musical skill. Listening to King's prowess on the blues guitar, the story almost sounds plausible. Blues Alley, 1073 Wisconsin Ave. NW (Rear); through Sun., $22.50; 202-337-4141, Bluesalley.com.

2 It's Good to Be the King

The first rule of Elvis' Birthday Fight Club is that absurdism rules the day. To honor what would have been the King's 77th birthday next week, the H Street Playhouse will host six rounds of battle between various costumed fighters. The show, which also features burlesque numbers, is hosted by Elvis (secretly not the real Elvis) and Kittie Glitter. H Street Playhouse, 1365 H St. NE; Fri. & Sat., 8:30 & 10:30, $16-$20; Fightclubshow.com.

3 Happily Ever After

Rodgers and Hammerstein's musical version of "Cinderella" was originally written for television. Don't let that turn you off — it's been remade for TV twice and is scheduled to hit Broadway this year. Check out Olney Theatre's production of the classic story, starring Jessica Lauren Ball. Olney Theatre Center, 2001 Olney-Sandy Spring Road, Olney, Md.; through Jan. 13, $26-$54; 301-924-3400, Olneytheatre.org.

‘Portlandia’ Is For Weirdos

FRI 10:00

“Portlandia,” the wacky IFC sketch show from “Saturday Night Live” veteran Fred Armisen, right, and Wild Flag guitarist Carrie Brownstein, left, enters its third season with a witty meditation on the desire for (and the lack of) social and cultural outrage. After buying a TV at a thrift store — his first in decades — the over-pierced bike messenger Spyke (Armisen) is shocked to discover that MTV has become home to nothing but shows about pregnant teens and kids arriving at red carpet functions in limousines. He becomes obsessed with occupying MTV and bringing back the “Rock the Vote” era. Guest stars this season include Roseanne Barr, Rose Byrne, Bill Hader, Martina Navratilova and Patton Oswalt. ## Can’t Teach an Old Dog New Tricks

Same but different is not always better. Cesar Millan’s new series, “Leader of the Pack” (Sat., 10 p.m., Nat Geo Wild), is practically the mirror image of his old one, “Dog Whisperer.” Instead of visiting owners of untrainable pets, Millan auditions three potential owners for a slightly troublesome dog languishing unclaimed in a pound or shelter. ▲ “Weighing in favor of the Twitter wall’s ridiculousness is its close link, like so many of Washington’s most lovable/hateable things, with gentrification: Studios at AVA start at $1,645. On the other hand, the wall could be fun to take in on a day when there’s, say, a mayoral indictment or an earthquake. Is this ridiculous? I’m on the fence.”

— Will Sommer at WASHINGTONCITYPAPER.COM/BLOGS/CITYDESK contemplates news that the I Street NE apartment complex pulls trending Twitter topics from tweets within a 3-mile radius surrounding the building and displays them on a screen in the lobby.

▲ “The feel of Jay’s music is of course infinitely more relevant to scoping the film’s environs than is the likeness of his character or personal history. And what better beats to roll out the larger-than-afterlife Gatsby persona than the grandiose productions of our one and only Hova?”

— James Hamblin at THEATLANTIC.COM/ ENTERTAINMENT welcomes the announcement that Jay-Z is collaborating with the Bullitts for the score of Baz Luhrmann’s “The Great Gatsby,” which stars Leonardo DiCaprio and is set to hit theaters in May.

▲ “It would be a major oversimplification to call [Star Trek: Deep Space Nine] a conservative show, but defining the ethos of the show against [Star Trek: The Next Generation] — which, especially in its first couple seasons, preached an almost childlike liberal utopianism — sometimes gave it a conservative flavor, and that (along with strong characters, fine acting, sharp writing, and so forth) helped make it great.”

— John Tabin at SPECTATOR.ORG/BLOG looks back on the politics of “Deep Space Nine” on Thursday, the 20th anniversary of the “Star Trek” spin-off’s premiere.

▲ “Interested to see how the Jay Mohr vs Jim Rome radio battle sorts itself out. I mostly only enjoyed Rome’s show when Mohr was guest-hosting.”

— @BUBBAPROG sees the potential for an airwaves rivalry between Rome and Mohr, who took over for Rome on Fox Sports Radio this week. Rome moved to the new CBS Sports Radio network.

Horoscope

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can avoid all kinds of errors today if you cast your sight forward and look carefully at the signs that come your way.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Calm comes from knowing that you are doing all you can, no matter what the outcome. You can only control so much, and you understand that.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You don't want to come on too strong when you are peddling your own ideas and agenda; let others come to their conclusions naturally.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're likely to require assistance but only early in the day. Later, when you reach your stride, you'll enjoy going solo.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Pressing duties must not be abandoned before they yield fruit; today, it's most important that you do what you have said you will do.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You don't have to tackle that rather daunting project all at once today; you can break it down into parcels that are much more manageable.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You can approach a routine problem in a new and imaginative way today — and that will likely serve you well in other, subsequent situations.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You mustn't shy away from the opportunity to show off a little today. You know how to do something that few can do as well as you!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Pace is not the issue today — but you mustn't slow down so much that you appear to be going nowhere at all!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) There are risks you must face if you are to avoid subsequent dangers. Today's accomplishments will pay off tomorrow.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) A decision you have been putting off may be made for you today by those who are unaware of their involvement with you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You can get more rest and relaxation today, but don't make the mistake of bowing out of a certain endeavor entirely.

Samurai Sudoku

Fill in each column, row and 3x3 box with the digits 1 through 9 without repeating any. The twist in Samurai Sudoku is that the digits that appear in the overlapping boxes must work for both puzzles. A piece of advice to get you started: Don't focus on completing one grid at a time. Keep the whole puzzle in mind as you go, because filling in a number in one grid could give you clues to another.

IN HER CONTRACT

'As a Gay Icon, I'm Allowed To Make Anderson Cooper Really Uncomfortable'

Kathy Griffin told David Letterman on Wednesday she's not sorry she pretended to perform a sex act on Anderson Cooper during CNN's New Year's Eve special. "I tried, ladies and gays, I tried for you," she said. Letterman asked how she would react if a man did that to her on TV. If the man was Cooper, she said, she'd "unzip so fast." (EXPRESS)

UNITS

She Started Measuring in Cups Rather Than Buckets

Paula Deen told Woman's Day in a new interview that she lost 36 pounds since being diagnosed with diabetes last year. "It's all about moderation," she said. "I just needed to learn to eat a normal portion size." She explained she wants "to be here for my grandchildren. ... My daddy was dead at 40. My mother was dead at 44. And look, I'm 65, and I'm still here!" (EXPRESS)

Who are we to judge the love between a woman and a giant stick of butter?

Explainable

It Was as This Was Happening

A woman who says she was traumatized by the crowd at a Jonas Brothers' concert nearly three years ago has sued Jonas Brothers Enterprises, E! reported. Ashleigh Johnson says she suffered "severe injury to her body and shock to her nervous system" plus "great mental ... and nervous pain." (EXPRESS)

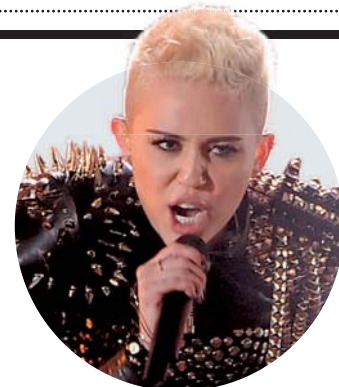

"Wow, this wax Bradley Cooper figure is so lifelike!" Zoe exclaimed.

EH, OVER IT

'Smell You Later, Brad'

Bradley Cooper and Zoe Saldana have split for the second time, the New York Post's Page Six reported. The pair first broke up in March 2012, then reunited in September. "Zoe had planned to spend the holidays with Bradley and his family in Europe," said an unnamed source. "They all were going to Paris, but things didn't work out between them." "If Zoe was upset over the split with Bradley, she didn't show it," said another unnamed source. (EXPRESS)

OPINIONS

Offensive, Insensitive and Ignorant ... a Perfect Tweet!

Miley Cyrus took to Twitter to rant about the Justin Bieber-chasing photographer who died Tuesday. "Parasozzi are dangerous! Wasn't Princess Di enough of a wake up call?!" she wrote in a series of three tweets. "It is unfair for anyone to put this on to Justin's conscious as well! This was bound to happen! Your mom teaches u when your a child not to play in the street!" (EXPRESS)

"I get hit on by the hottest girls ever. Oh my God, if I were a lesbian, I would be so in luck."

— KELLY CLARKSON SAID IN AN INTERVIEW FOR COSMOPOLITAN'S FEBRUARY ISSUE THAT SHE'S NEVER BEEN OFFENDED BY RUMORS SHE'S A LESBIAN.
